Clear Channel has decided that independent artists are no longer required to waive digital rights to gain airplay on its stations. You may remember that as part of a payola-related settlement, Clear Channel was one of 5 major radio groups who agreed to allocate portions of airplay time for independent and unsigned artists. They were also targeted for asking the bands heard on these 'indy hours' to forgo their online royalties, particularly as it relates to online station simulcasts and on-demand offerings. The company felt the pressure applied by groups like the Future Of Music Coalition, the organization that actually filed a formal complaint about the CC digital policy with the FCC.

The list of elected officials opposing the XM-Sirius merger is growing, as Midwest Reps. Bart Stupak (D-MI) and Steven Latourette (R-OH) throw their respective hats into the ring of dissent. They've written a letter to Assistant Attorney General Thomas Bennett and FCC Chairman Kevin Martin, calling the merger "not in the best interest of our constituents" and saying that the satellite services are "significantly different from free over the air radio and other audio technologies, such as iPods. There is currently no existing audio service or product that qualifies as a viable substitute for satellite radio that could constrain the behavior of an XM-Sirius monopoly."

Given the above, here's a news item: Clear Channel Urban WGCI/Chicago's "Crazy" Howard McGee, Art Porter and Nikki Woods have exited in anticipation of the arrival of the syndicated Steve Harvey Morning Show next month. Commentary: We wonder out loud about the direction of our industry when the LOCAL morning show of a successful top-3 market music radio station is not only replaced by an out of market syndicated talent, but that its parent company would feel the need to share news of the change, in advance, with the press. We didn't see the original release, but we hope its title wasn't: "Market Leading Station Dumps Talented Morning Show for Out-Of-Town Voice". There was a time when the replacement of major market local programming in morning drive with a far away personality wasn't anything to be proud of...much less, publicize. But that was then. Now, could you hit me with that "satellite services are significantly different from free over the air radio" one more time, Rep's Stupak and Latourette? - TK

Minnesota Public Radio is now in negotiations to buy noncommercial Religion WGTS/Washington from Columbia Union College. The board of trustees of the college voted earlier in July to entertain a bid from American Public Media Group, the parent company of MPR, although no price has been made public. A spokesman for the college, Scott Steward, commented, "The school's board of trustees saw this as an asset that had matured, and they were interested in seeing what that might be able to do for the college." AMPG President Bill Kling said, "We don't know what the outcome of this process will be, and the college continues to operate the station. If APMG's proposal is chosen, APMG plans a new service for Washington, DC with an emphasis on global government issues. As the parent to Minnesota Public Radio and to Southern California Public Radio, APMG has the experience and track record of success to help the station realize its full potential." A decision is expected by September.

Big trouble for Missouri Valley Broadcasting Country KMMO/AM-FM/Marshall, MO's Ethan Handel, who was charged this week in federal court with using the internet to solicit sex from a 14 year old girl. He was arrested Sunday in Independence, MO, after arriving at what he thought would be a meeting with the girl, who turned out to be an undercover agent. The court filing contains alleged admissions of previous sexual activity with minors. GM for the station John Wilson issued a statement saying Handel's coworkers are "shocked" and that the station is cooperating with police.

Lincoln Financial Media Country KYGO/Denver has proclaimed the winner of the KYGO Personality Contest. Skip Miller! He was chosen from an initial pool of about 30 contestants and has been offered a job as host of the Saturday night Club KYGO show!

DJ Kaos and Sylli ASZ, aka 'The Janky Boyz,' have been called up to Radio One Urban WHHL/St. Louis for nights. The saucy pair were fired earlier this year from crosstown Clear Channel Urban KATZ for allegedly making remarks about the St. Louis Police Department. They had been doing a morning show on the internet until their hiring. Staci Statis and Young Dip's shifts have been shifted to accommodate the pair, who are expected to begin their new duties immediately.

He'll cover an eight-state territory including Washington, Oregon, Idaho, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Minnesota, and Alaska.

Clear Channel/Madison Internet & Integrated Marketing Director Nick Ring utilized his mad promo skillz last Friday when proposing to his girlfriend, Ashley. Ring said, "I had it all planned out. Ashley works at a daycare in DeForest and a few weeks ago, I purchased 34 junior sized t-shirts for all of the kids there. Well, they dressed up in them for a game they thought was "Alphabet Bingo." Ashley thought it was alphabet bingo as well. All of the kids painted a letter on their shirt, and then went and stood in line, trying to form a word. (The other daycare teacher showed them how to get in the correct order). Well, Ashley's job was to guess what the word was- and one by one they would turn around. Finally, they all turned around so she could see their shirts- and it said, "Will You Marry Me Ashley". Then, right as she was reading it, I started to walk out of the daycare holding the hand of her favorite two year old daycare kid, who was wearing the shirt with the question mark on it. We got up to her and I got down on one knee and proposed."

originally found on the pages and websites of the Conclave's Publicity Partners. Here's the next installment, from Jay Trachman's One to One: "The Brand Champs"—by Barb Richardson, PD WAJI/Fort Wayne, Ind. I FINALLY got a chance to go to the Radio Conclave in Minneapolis. I have heard through the years what a great convention this was — a real focus on learning, with a great schedule of subjects, great speakers and great networking activities — even a bowling party! There was always a date conflict with a big festival here in town but this year they moved the conference and I booked! Everyone was right — it IS a fabulous conference run by a great bunch of people. OMG! It was well run, they fed us all the time and I have a ton of notes from seminars! I left the hotel room at 8 am and didn't get back until 5 pm all three days! That was a whole lot of learning (and it severely cut into my nap time and drinking time!) (Just kidding!) This year the big focus was on marketing to women. I've been in radio a long time and have been to conventions with NO women speakers and NO women attendees, so I am always pleased when I see more women everywhere! There were more — there were female program directors in charge of FM Talk for Women, there were female consultants giving us ideas as to how to really connect with women and there were women marketers and promo people who shared some great promotional ideas that women LOVE! Over and over again we heard one message loud and clear: women respond to stories. Stories are what connect with women. A story captures her imagination, gives her a relatable scenario and taps into her emotional side. Radio is but a tiny sliver of a very busy person's life — we'd better make that connection or else we won't be important enough for her to write us down! That's what this new Jayne format is all about — making that connection with women without being negative towards men. As I heard it explained and listened to an air check of the approach, I want to say it's a format with a wink — like the woman is talking to me and giving me a sly wink on the side. Yeah, I know what she's saying, but the way she is saying it lets me in on what she means... (A guy reading this article just went, "What?" Every woman is shaking her head in agreement...) It's good, it's cute, it has a good chance of working for a station that needs to find a niche. Then we heard the Brand Champs, consumer behaviorists and brand strategists. And Fran and Bill were wonderfully entertaining and full of useful information. I think I enjoyed their session the most because they gave us such great workable information. I came back and immediately put several things they had said into place. The absolutely best slide I saw at Conclave was during this presentation. The slide showed two mechanical boxes. The top box was plain except for one knob. That represented the brain of the man. The bottom box showed 36 different knobs and represented the brain of a woman. That explains everything you need to know about a woman... Our brain connects in different ways all the time. The guys — one path and that works for them. That's why, when there is a fight, followed by a solution, guys think "That's it." But a woman's brain all of a sudden connects the information in a different way and she brings it up again from a different angle. (Drives you guys nuts, doesn't it? Teehee!) The Brand Champs say that men look for a solution, women look for the perfect answer. Men are the hunters, the selfish ones getting to the prey first. Women back at the cave had to SHARE resources to survive. They had to collaborate with other women. Because of evolution what is most important to women? Relationships. To men? Achieving alpha status! There is much more to share across the next few weeks about this great conference. (The Conclave thanks Barb, RadioAndRecords.com, radio-info.com, insideradio.com, fmqb.com, radioink.com, and allaboutcountry.com for communicating the magic of a very special June weekend in Minneapolis.)

Final Changes. Don Beebe, former wide receiver for the Green Bay Packers, is joining Entercom Sports WSSP-AM/Milwaukee to do morning-after commentary the day after every Packers game this coming fall. He'll be on the Doug Russell Show beginning at 7:05 am after every Packers' game. WSSP PD Ryan Maguire noted, "We just added six Super Bowl appearances to our roster. Don will give our listeners a look at Packers football that they can't get anywhere else in Milwaukee. Most importantly, he's still a Packers fan at heart. When fans listen to him, they'll be hearing on of their own. We're lucky to have him."... Mark Jaycox has been promoted at Salem Communications' Milwaukee cluster to Station Manager. He assumes his new responsibilities immediately. VP/GM in Chicago and Milwaukee Dave Santrella commented, "Make Jaycox has provided tremendous leadership for our sales team in Milwaukee. Over the last 18 months, he's honed his considerable skills and experience in our Milwaukee stations and is well equipped for the responsibilities incumbent on the position." He joined Salem in January of 2004 as General Sales Manager.
